WINTER CARNIVAL GREAT SUCCESS

EVENT ATTRACTS MANY VISITORS FROM OTHER CITIES

Winter sports have officially begun in Grayling and the hillside at Lake Margrethe are the mecca for hundreds of outdoor enthusiasts. All glad they are living and building good health for many more happy years to come. Tobogganing, skis and skates are flying and snowshoes are plodding their ways over deep snows and there is an air of activity at the lake that has never before been equalled there. Everywhere there are ruddy young people and many who are old only in years but not in spirit. Toboggans zip by with hull-like speed and carry their occupants far out on Lake Margrethe. Then there is the trek back to the "take-off" that warms the blood in spite of the wintry atmosphere.

Saturday was a great day. Although the sports had been going on for several weeks past, the sports activities needed that embellishment that could only come about by a program of official dedication.

It is in the hills running down to this lake that the Grayling winter sports committee, headed by T. W. Hanson, has established a new toboggan slide 900 feet long.

To signalize the formal opening of this slide, the school population of Grayling recently held an election to choose a Queen of Winter Sports; and Saturday, accompanied by nearly the whole grown population of the town, with many from the county assisting, formed a procession at the school house, paraded the business streets and then straggled out through the hills to the lake.

Queen Is Crowned

Little Miss Dorothy May, 17 years old and a twelfth grade pupil, had received the votes and was crowned by Mr. Hanson. Assisting Mr. Hanson were Clarence Johnson, who built the slide, Fred R. Welsh, Laverne Cushman, and Anthony Nelson. "Around them, up along the hillside and down to the lake, stood a crowd of several hundred." Then Queen Dorothy May, doffing her crown for reasons connected with a mile a minute jump through the air and a possible spill on the ice, took her seat on a toboggan with eight maids behind her and made the first descent. Elizabeth Matson, Pauline Lietz, Margaret Warren, Mary Esther Schumann, Irene Randolph, Annabelle Harris, Ellen Gohr, and Jean Thorne, were the maids of honor on the slide.

The festivities, punctuated by a formal program featured by a tour of war on the ice, began at 1 p. m. when the queen, riding in an armchair throne on a sledge drawn by a span of shetland ponies, headed the procession through the town.

They lasted until late at night. The toboggan slide is lighted by colored incandescents, and lined with flag-staffs, while the grounds about the clubhouse also were illuminated during the evening.

The slide has two runways of different speeds. One is a trough banked with snow and ice. Down this the toboggans come fast enough, but slow compared with the screaming crews in the other trough. This one is floored with smooth ice, and the rate of travel is terrific. But the entire day passed without an accident.

While the toboggan slides were busy a program of sports contests was being held on the lake, the winners being as follows:

Men's snowshoe race—Laverne Cushman.

Ladies' snowshoe race—Libbie Matson.

Girls' ski race—Yvonne San-Gar-tier.

Boys' ski race—Don Kangas.

Men's ski race—Anton Kangas.

Tug-of-war—Mary Esther Schumann's team.

Prizes awarded the winners consisted of cash and merchandise from the Carl Peterson jewelry store and in season slide tickets.

Sunday A Big Day

While there was a large crowd on the hills on Saturday it was small in comparison to that of the following day—Sunday. Besides a large number of home people there were visitors present from Clare, West Branch, Bay City, Flint, Gaylord, Roscommon and many other places. There was no time lost at the take-off. No sooner was a toboggan discharged down the icy troughway, before another was getting on all afternoon.

In the evening the crowds again assembled and continued their pleasures while out on the lake there was a gorgeous display of fireworks and it is the opinion of many that they excelled in splendor exhibitions of summer-time displays.

A great convenience at the seat of winter sports is the Colleen pavilion where hot lunches and drinks are served at all times and where those who so desire may rest and enjoy the cozy warmth of a hot stove. Parking places for cars are ample to care for the largest crowds. The toboggan slides and ice rink will be kept in operation just as long as weather permits, and those coming from out of the city may be assured that tobogganing will be available at all times, unless the elements prevent. That is hardly probable at this time of the year.

A daguerotype of Abraham Lincoln, the sixteenth President of the United States. This was the favorite photographic portrait of the man who is known variously as the Martyr President, the Great Emancipator and the Story-Telling President.

IN MEMORY OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

No bugles blared to herald out his birth,
No bonfires leaped above the sleeping earth,
No soft, luxurious cradle waited there
To hold his little body in its care.

HIS home was cold and cheerless like that cave
That sheltered One who came to love and save—
Humble and poor within that cabin rude,
He lay—the man to stir the multitude.

AND like that other One when manhood came
He sought not riches, power or fleeting fame;
His was a purpose noble, great and high:
To make a better world for you and I.

MAN of vision, sent to fill our need,
Humble of heart, mighty of strength and deed;
A grateful world gives thanks and praise today
Because a man like you has walked its way.

CANTATA AT THE M. E. CHURCH WAS MUCH ENJOYED WED- NESDAY NIGHT

The Cantata given Wednesday night by the choir of the Grayling church was very much enjoyed and was one of the best musical programs ever given in Grayling. The cantata was advertised for a week ago last night, but due to the blizzard was postponed, and not being able to advertise the change in date very extensively, the crowd last night was small. Following the program a delightful lunch was served in the church dining room by Mrs. West and members of the Sunday School—Gaylord Herald Times.

ASSISTANCE APPRECIATED

The officers and members of the Hospital Aid society are duly grateful and appreciative for the splendid cooperation and assistance rendered in giving the annual Charity ball. They wish to thank those who so kindly helped in making the arrangements, doing the decorating and the many who donated toward this worthy enterprise.

MICH. LEGISLATIVE NEWS LETTER

Michigan Press Association, Lansing Bureau

The legislature, after several weeks spent in getting organized, getting acquainted, making committee trips to all sections of the state to investigate conditions and requirements of the various institutions, is now getting down to the actual business of the session. Bills by the score are pouring into the hopper every day, committees are holding morning and evening meetings, reports are beginning to come out from committees, and new legislation may be said to be fairly on its way.

From now on every day's session of the Senate and House will be animated and of interest. Before and after the regular session little knots of legislators are gathered in both halls, earnestly discussing the state and lively arguments pro and con are heard on every hand.

The outstanding legislation of the present session is undoubtedly the matter of ways and means of raising the money to pay for the ten-year building program of state institutions. Michigan. In 1879, she was married to George L. Kile to which union were born three children: Frank who passed away in infancy, a son, and a daughter, Mrs. C. who resides in Lapeer County, Michigan. argument, being that any new tax, even though proposed for a certain time, is almost certain to remain as a permanent tax. It is quoted that the corporation tax was to be a two-year proposition, but every year has seen its apparent necessity for some special purpose or other and the question of the corporation tax ever being removed is never mentioned. It is undoubtedly a permanent proposition, and many of the legislators see the same fate ahead of the income tax if adopted. There are members who favor an income tax in lieu of the property tax, but that is a matter of future consideration. It is certain to meet with bitter opposition if it is ever proposed. "Many other methods of raising the proposed expenditure for rehabilitation of the long neglected state institutions are being discussed, one which is apparently finding some support being a proposed amusement tax on admission tickets to all places of amusement. This proposition is favored by Speaker Ming and he and the Governor are holding conferences in regard to it with the possibility that a compromise may be effected. The proposed amusement tax would impose a five-cent tax on all tickets under one dollar, with exemptions on church, festival and other non-profit attractions, and it is estimated that this tax would bring in about seven to eight million dollars. Mr. Ming proposes that one million of this fund shall go to the relief of the poorer school districts of the state and is of the opinion that the balance will take care of the proposed rebuilding program of state institutions advocated by Governor Green.

The proposition presented by a Detroit member to constitute a number of the northern counties of the lower peninsula thus met with a storm of protest from the counties mentioned. The people of these counties, as voiced by their newspapers and their legislators, say that when they need such legislation they will ask for it themselves and that they believe they are as well qualified to know what they want as the Wayne county members of the legislature. Representative J. D. Dykstra has introduced a bill proposing a three-way split of the weight tax money by which one-third would go to cities, villages and counties. Many Wayne county members favor the proposition, but up-state legislators are not so enthusiastic about it.

Representative John Hoffman of Bessemer, serving his seventh term, made his first appearance of the session this week, having been detained at home by illness. Representative Milton R. Palmer of Detroit proposes a constitutional amendment permitting the appointment of circuit judges for life, doing away with their election and taking it out of politics. M. A. Bates has been reappointed postmaster at this place, which was confirmed Monday.

The body of James P. Hanna arived here yesterday morning from Kansas, accompanied by his daughter,

Mrs. T. E. Hastings, with whom he had been since the death of his wife, last year. Mr. Hanna was one of the early pioneers of Beaver Creek, in this county, a successful and progressive farmer, and a man of unblemished character and undoubted integrity.

We think he had passed four score years of life. He will be buried today from his old home, by the side of the wife with whom he had lived for more than half a century, and both will be long remembered for the good deeds of their life.

Wednesday, January 31st, members of the Marvin Relief Corps to the number of fifteen, accepted the kind invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Chalker to spend the day at their home in Maple

Forest. Those who through illness or other unavoidable causes were compelled to remain at home are still mourning the fact. The day was fine, the sleighing was perfect, and there was no mistaking their welcome in the hearty greeting given upon their arrival. An elegant dinner was served, which was partaken of with that zest which good cooking and appetites gained by the long ride in the keen air always engenders. We must not forget to mention the sleighload, who being of an exploring turn of mind took a circuitous route and not until dinner was more than half over did they present themselves, however it did not matter so long as they came in time for their share of that delicious "chicken pie." The afternoon passed amid merry jests and laughter, and a little of the serious talk which must always be when old friends meet, and the time for departure homeward came all too soon. The "Good-byes" were said and if wishes count our good friends in the pleasant Maple Forest home will know no more for the rest of their lives.

BANKERS IN NATIONAL MOVE FOR UNIFORM FINANCIAL PRACTICES

Would Promote Greater Consistency Among All the State Laws in Respect to Banking Conditions—Uniformity of Practice and Understanding Will Make for Greater Convenience, Efficiency and Safety for All Business.

By S. J. HIGH

President State Bank Division, American Bankers Association

RAPID interchange of business and the quick transportation of goods in the United States, coupled with almost instantaneous means of inter-communication by telegraph, telephone and wireless, have welded the country into an economic unit. The nation is not in a business sense, conducting its affairs in water-tight compartments, as in a measure it did in the days of slow travel and remote places, but styles, methods, commodities and business practices flow freely today in all directions. Therefore it is desirable that finance, trade and industry throughout the country operate along generally uniform or at least consistent lines, so that a contract or an agreement or obligation in connection with business transactions shall mean virtually the same thing in all parts of the country. Particularly necessary in this connection is the establishment of uniform financial and banking practices so as to facilitate the flow of trade along accepted and understood lines.

Banking in the United States is recognized as a semi-public type of business and is therefore sub-

THE ANNUAL CHARITY BALL

In spite of weather conditions and although the date for the annual Charity Ball had been changed owing to the local flu epidemic which made it necessary to postpone the party, the affair which was given on Friday evening at the school gymnasium was very successful. The various committees swung into action—the first of the week and by Friday every detail had been arranged and a beautifully appointed ball was the result, with a very fair crowd in attendance to appreciate the delightful affair.

The decorations while not so elaborate as usual but were so effectively arranged that many voiced the sentiment that they were the best ever. Cerise and black and gold were used as a background to carry out the idea of a "Masquerade" and was so arranged from the balcony to the floor so that the dancers appeared to enter from outside as they approached the floor. The "gala" colors were carried out in the festoons above the balcony while three huge lanterns covered with many different colors hung below the festooning; these were electric lighted and threw a subdued light of many colors over the dancers. A beautiful gold gondola was the setting behind which the orchestra was seated, the graceful boat standing in a circle of tall pots of greenery which softened the delightful setting. Mrs. A. J. Joseph was responsible for the beautiful scene which the gymnasium presented.

The music was very good and was well received judging by the hearty cheers which followed each piece. The musicians were the LaFarge orchestra of Bay City.

Lunch was served by the committee later in the evening in the domestic science room.

While the ticket sale was not as large as usual the floor was well filled for each dance and everyone was in fine spirits. With good music and a merry crowd and dancing, a party is sure to be enjoyed.

The chairman of committees were as follows: General Chairman Mrs. Frank Anstett; decoration, Mrs. A. J. Joseph; tickets, Mrs. Robt. Reagan; lunch, Mrs. Marius Hanson; advertising, Mrs. Oscar Schumann.

Among those from out of the city in attendance at the ball included the following: Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hermann, Miss Rena Lewis, Lansing; Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Lewis, Mark Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. David Keay, Flint; James Grover, St. Helen; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rockwell, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Haight, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Walker, Miss Leona Gocha, Miss Lucile Campbell, Alex. Cole, William Berry, Gaylord; P. E. Marston, Bay City; Misses Evelyn and Helen Preston, Bruno Curnalia and Francis Murphy, Rosemont; Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Hampton, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Clute and Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Schaaf, Harrison.

WOMAN'S CLUB NOTES

The annual and final meeting was held Monday evening, February 4th, at the home of Mrs. Laura Giegling, Roll call, business session, and election of officers. Following is the list of officers for the year 1928-29:

President—Mrs. Jennie Sorenson.
1st Vice Pres.—Mrs. Laura Giegling.

2nd Vice Pres.—Mrs. Marjorie MacNamara.
Record Sec'y.—Miss Isa Granger.

Corresponding Sec'y.—Miss Ingeborg Hanson.
Treasurer—Miss Kathryn Brown.

Delegate to State Convention—Mrs. Jennie Sorenson; alternate—Mrs. Giegling.

Delegate to District convention at West Branch—Mrs. Laura Giegling; alternate—Miss Coletta Smith.

The entertainment for the evening was a program broadcast from station B-T-M, consisting of vocal solos, duets, saxophone duets, song by a chorus of voices, bedtime stories, news, jokes and weather report.

Mrs. Laura Olson acted as announcer and very ably filled her place before the microphone. Those taking part in the program were Mrs. Laura Giegling, Mrs. Myrtle Milnes, the Misses Kathryn Brown, Eva Dorr, Ingeborg Hanson and Vella Hermann.

After the program a delicious lunch was served by the Social committee.

The program of Folk Songs of Various Countries, as presented by the music division at the January 24th meeting, and which was omitted in last week's Club Notes was as follows:

1 American negro music—"Steal away to Jesus," played by Miss Quackenbush.

2 England—"Drink to me only with thine eyes," sung by the club members.

3 Ireland—"When love is kind," by Glee Club, composed of Margaret Warren, Dorothy Roberts, Grace Parker and Lura Ensign.

4 Scotland—"Loch Lomond," sung by club members.

5 German—"How can I leave thee," sung by club members.

6 Switzerland—"The Switzer's farewell," solo by Margaret Warren.

7 Italy—"Santa Lucia," sung by club members.

8 Bohemian—"Songs my mother taught me," played by Miss Quackenbush.

9 Russian—"The Volga Boatman," originally composed of Mrs. Jarmine Vella Hermann, Grace Parker and Margaret Warren.

10 Poland—"Spring song," played by Miss Quackenbush.

11 Norway—"Oh fetch the water," played by Miss Quackenbush.

12 Wales—"All thru the night," Glee Club.

13 Austria—"City lad and country lass," by Glee Club.

14 Canada—"The Lark," Glee Club.

There are many reasons for the ease of steering the new Ford

THE new Ford is exceptionally easy to steer because of the well-proportioned weight of the car, the steel-spoke wheels, the co-ordinated design of springs and shock absorbers, the size and design of the steering wheel, and the simple mechanical construction of the steering gear.

The Ford steering gear is of the worm and sector type used on high-priced cars and is three-quarter irreversible.

In simple, non-technical language, this means that the car responds easily and quickly to the steering wheel, yet there is no danger of the wheel being jerked from the hands of the driver by ruts or bumps in the road. A light touch guides the car, yet you always have that necessary firmness essential to good driving.

Strength of materials and careful workmanship give unusual stability to the Ford steering gear and housing.

The steering worm, for instance, is splined to the steering worm shaft and is stronger, of course, than if a single key were used to hold the shaft and worm together. The steering worm sector is forged and machined in the same piece with its shaft.

The housing of the steering gear mechanism is made of three steel forgings, electrically welded together. This housing is then electrically welded to the steering column. Such a one-piece steel unit is naturally much sturdier than if several parts were used and bolted or riveted together.

Throughout, the new Ford steering mechanism is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no attention.

The only thing for you to do is to have the front steering spindles, spindle connecting rods, and drag link lubricated every 500 miles and the steering gear lubricated every 2000 miles.

For this work, you will find it best to consult the Ford dealer. He has been specially trained and equipped to help you get the greatest possible use from your car over the longest period of time at a minimum of trouble and expense.

YOUNG ARSONIST
The fire department was called to the home of Frank Ingles Tuesday afternoon due to a small fire that started in the wood box. It is claimed that the fire was started by Bobby, 6 years old, who had deliberately set the fire. It is reported that this is the third time the youngster committed such a trick and he was given a warning by Fire Chief Tony Nelson that the next time he did such a thing, that he would come and get him. The damage was but slight.

THE L. N. L. HOLD INSTALLATION

The Ladies National League held an open installation of officers last evening which was very well attended.

After the business session cards and visiting were enjoyed the rest of the evening.

Miss Randolph and Mrs. Bynham won high score for Pedro while Mrs. Corwin and Ernest Corwin received the consolation prizes.

For pinocchio Mrs. McDaniel and Oliver Schoemaker won first prizes and Mrs. Jessie Babbitt and Roy Lovely won consolation prizes.

A fine pot luck lunch with valentine favors completed a very enjoyable evening.

STATE OF MICHIGAN
In the Circuit Court for the county of Crawford, in Chancery.

Rosecommon State Bank, a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of Michigan, Plaintiff, vs. Samuel A. New and Mattie L. New, his wife, Charles A. Culver and Alice Culver, Arthur Blanchard and John McDaniel, Defendants.

At a session of said court held at the Court House in the Village of Grayling, in said County, upon the 6th day of January A. D. 1929.

Present: Hon. Guy E. Smith, Circuit Judge.

In this case satisfactory proof appearing by affidavit that it can not be ascertained in what state or county the defendants, Samuel A. New and Mattie L. New, his wife, Charles A. Culver and Alice Culver, Arthur

Blanchard and John McDaniel, reside, if living, and that if dead the names and whereabouts of the heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns of each of them, are unknown, and that they are proper and necessary parties defendants in the above entitled cause:

On motion of W. Clarence Smith, attorney for plaintiff, it is ordered that the appearance of said defendants, Samuel A. New and Mattie L. New, his wife, Charles A. Culver and Alice Culver, Arthur Blanchard and John McDaniel, and the unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns of each of them be entered in this cause within three months from the date of this order, and that in case of their appearance, or any of them, that they respectively cause answer to this bill of complaint to be filed, and copy thereof served on the attorney for plaintiff within fifteen days after service on them, or such as shall appear, of a copy of said bill, and that in default of an appearance or answer that said bill of complaint be taken as confessed by each of said defendants.

It is further ordered that a copy of this order be published in the Crawford Avalanche, a newspaper printed, published and circulated in said county, as required by law.

This bill of complaint is filed for the purpose of quieting plaintiff's title to the following described land to-wit: The Northwest quarter (N. W. 1/4) of the Southwest quarter (S. W. 1/4) of the Southwest quarter (S. W. 1/4) of the Southwest quarter (S. W. 1/4), Section thirty-one (31), Township twenty-five (25) North, Range two (2) West, and the Southwest quarter (S. The Red Stone

"We ought to try to get inside of this house as soon as possible. If Toulou and Helen and the rest of them are not here," said Nikka. "King and I have talked it over. We've been able to think of a safe way of getting inside. Of course, we could run ashore in the launch, but that would be a very risky business. We must find a way to get inside the house. The old garden is the best place. It is occupied as Nikka had told Jack and me. Toulou and Helen and a number of his army followers."

help, was it wise to rob in front of my door?"

Nikka affected embarrassment. "Why, no, to that, volonte, there is something to be said," he agreed. "But we saw the franks, and their looks spell gold, and—what would you? 'Twas a chance. Also, we thought the police would not dare to touch us here."

The "ri thrust herself scornfully to the fore. "Gabble, gabble, gabble," she mocked. "Are we old wives that we mouth over everything? These men robbed, they did, and they have their loot. Foster-father, you are not so keen as you once were. Something was said of a division."

A greedy light dawned in Tokaji's eyes. "Yes, yes," he insisted, "that is right. So you said, my ind, and if you would have shelter you must pay for it."

"So will I," Nikka flung the money-belt, some loose change and a watch down on the ground, and squatted beside them. The rest of us did the same. The girl seized the belt, and emptied the compartments, one by one.

"Hush, hush," she exclaimed. "This was worth taking. You are a man of judgment, friend—What is your name?"

"I am called Giorgi Bordu. My friend is named Jakka in the Tziganes camps."

"Did he have any papers, that Frank?" asked Tokaji.

"All that he had is there," replied Nikka. "Humph!" The gypsy thought a moment. "It was strange that you at once wanted me to follow you. I do not want them sneaking around here. They are after something that I want myself."

Nikka, sitting back on his heels, produced his tobacco box and rolled a cigarette. "Perhaps a strange thief and his friend might be of aid to you," he suggested.

"Perhaps they might, I don't know. You are smart fellows, I can see that. And I need men like you. But I am not alone in this. There are others. Do you see? I must consult them."

"Two I am using just now," Nikka said. "Are they Tziganes?" inquired Nikka politely.

"Of a sort. But they have lived too long with the Franks. They are not so ready as they once were, and I find they do not bring me the information I require. We will accept your company for whatever it is. You I know I can use. Karna, take the strangers to Mother Kathene. Tell her to put them with the young men."

Nikka and I pounced our shares of the loot we had brought in. Nikka, appropriating to himself Watkins' Birmingham silver watch. The gypsy girl never took her eyes off him.

"We are ready," said Nikka. Her face flowered to an instantaneous smile. "It is well, Giorgi Bordu. Come with me."

She led us across the courtyard to the building which fronted it on the left. Inside was a big, stone-paved hall. There were traces of carvings on the capitals of the pillars and a few ancient frescoes. But the place reeked with the stench of a tenement. Three old women were huddled in front of a fire that blazed on an enormous hearth and strings of onions and garlic hung from hooks in the ceiling.

Karna slipped across to the fireplace, and tipped the oldest of the three women on the shoulder. "Hi, Mother Kathene," she called loudly. "Here are two strangers. Karna has taken them to the tribe."

The three hags tottered to their feet, and peered at us with bleared eyes. "Strangers?" whined Mother Kathene. "Why strangers in the tribe? Haven't we enough fine young men in the tribe and a chief? Heh! heh! I don't like strangers."

"Strangers are bad luck," pronounced a second, bearded, whose name was Ziltz. "Bad luck," echoed the third, who was called Lili. "And I suppose we'll have to look and scrub for the reason, too."

Karna pinched her with a viciousness that made us poor old thing squelch. "Bah, Mother Lili, you are lucky to have a chief like Karna, who gives the old ones work to do and shelter and food for the end of their days. Instead of driving them out to seek the bounty of the Roulms and Franks. And you are luckier still to have a great chief like Giorgi Bordu to look for. Have done with it!" she commanded imperiously. "Where are Giorgi and Jakka to lie?"

"Where they choose," returned Ziltz sourly. Karna waved her hand about the chamber. "Here or above, whichever you say," she announced to us. "These are the quarters of the young men."

"May we look above?" asked Nikka, anxious to seize this opportunity to explore. Her answer was to dance up the stairs—she seldom walked or did anything slowly. We followed her. There was a central corridor, and from it opened various rooms, some of them cramped with all manner of goods, valuable rugs, bric-a-brac, cloths, and frequently, the vilest junk.

"Boran stores plunder here, as you can see," she said. "The other rooms are empty. The young men prefer to sleep all together where they can watch one another."

"What is good enough for them is good enough for us," Nikka decided. "But is there no more to see? I thought the building ran around by the water."

interest in herself. "Across the court," she answered. "Come and you shall see."

We descended the stairs into the big hall on the ground floor, where the three hags had crouched again before the fire, and crossed the courtyard to the building opposite on the right of the entrance. Immediately above the door on a panel let into the wall, head lowered and in act of charge, I looked at Nikka, and his eyes met mine with a warning glance to say nothing. It was a good thing that my knowledge of gypsy dialect was sketchy, for had I been able to, I believe I should have exclaimed over this first clue and attempted to probe our guide's knowledge of it.

Karna never gave the sculpture a glance; it meant nothing to her. She beckoned us inside the door. Here was a spacious, pillared hall, triple-aisled like a small church, its battered pavement showing traces here and there of the gorgeous mosaics which once had floored it.

"These are the quarters of the married people," explained Karna. "Boran sleeps here. The others upstairs."

"And you?" asked Nikka. "Oh, I live where I choose, but most of all I like my garden."

"Your garden? Where is there a garden?" "I will show you, Giorgi Bordu."

Karna crossed the room and opened another door. This led to a pillared portico, and I gazed in wonder at the sheer loveliness of this morsel of imperial Byzantium, buried in the frowly lanes of Stambul. There was a tangle of stretch of garden, weed-grown, of course, and two jade-green cedars that lifted their heads in isolated majesty. Around the four sides ran the portico, although in two places the pillars had collapsed and the ground beneath the roof showed the ground.

But the rem of the place was the fountain in the center, a fine marble basin on his hind legs with a broken spur in his chest. From the open mouth poured a stream of water that fell into a stone-lined pool.

Then I recovered from the bewilderment inspired by the unexpected charm of the picture, and realized for the first time what it meant. The bull stork, the marks of heavy hinges at its foot where a gate had hung, an atrium in the old Roman architecture—the garden—by Jove, even the cedars!—the Garden of the Cedars; and the Fountain of the Lion. It was exactly as the first hagh had described it, in which we had found.

I dug my fingers into Nikka's arm. "Yes, yes," he said quickly in English. "I see it, too. But do not let yourself seem excited."

Involuntarily I repeated to myself the concluding sentences of the instructions which we had all memorized. "From the center of the Fountain take four paces west toward the wall of the atrium. Then walk three paces north. Underfoot is a red stone an inch square."

The center of the Fountain—where could that be? The pool stretched sideways as we saw it. A trail of the atrium. Pointing then, it was intended to mean from the center of the pedestal on which the lion was perched. I stepped out from the portico, measured with my eye the distance from the pedestal west toward the wall of the atrium, and walked north on the paved walk which rimmed the central grass plot.

The dusky heap was composed of blocks of red and brown granite in a checker-board pattern, but they seemed to be only a foot square. It was not until I passed the center of the fountain that I discovered that at regular intervals a larger stone was inserted in the design. And sure enough, I found a red one about three and a half paces, as I roughly made it, in a northward line from the point I had reached. It was the center-west of the center of the fountain.

I walked around the garden, determined to take advantage of this extraordinary opportunity to survey the grounds. But there was nothing else to see. On one side the porticoes fringed a blank wall, evidently belonging to the adjoining property.

I abandoned my investigations because I gathered from the tones of their voices that Nikka was having an argument with Karna. When I came up to them, Nikka was offering her Watkins' watch; but she dashed it to the pavement, burst into tears and fled back the way we had come.

"What have you been doing, Lotta?" Nikka demanded in French. "She wanted me to kiss her," Nikka's discomfort was heart-warming. "She doesn't know any better. I'll kiss her as often as she or quite as pretty; but the same kind of untamed accidents. We gypsies spoil our women if they have any spirit. And she—Well, you could see for yourself. She has been brought up in this atmosphere. Crime is an art with her. She looks upon a clever robbery as you do on a good job of architecture. She has lived with men ever since she left her mother's arms. She doesn't know what it means to be refused anything. She—she's all right, you know."

"I know she's the prettiest savage creature I've ever seen," I returned dryly. "Since she is the first, however, that I met who didn't mean to kill me. You seem to be very anxious to explain her savagery, my friend. Why didn't you kiss her?"

Nikka picked up the watch and examined the broken crystal. "I don't think we'd better stop here," he answered vaguely. "Women's quarters, and all that sort of thing. Hullo, here, Tokaji, now!"

The gypsy chief stalked out of the atrium. "What have you been doing to the girl?" he growled. "I wouldn't kiss her," said Nikka with a sudden grin.

Tokaji's bearded face was cracked by a burst of gurgling laughter. "You are a wise one! I said so! I know, man,"—Boran Tokaji! But "work you," and his tone took on an edge. "Be careful with her. She is all I have, and I give her to no man I do not know. You come in to out of the street, whoever you are. Prove yourself, and I can make much of you. But the young men stay out of this house. I want no troubles over women in the tribe. Remember that, you two."

HARD ON THE PURSE

"My, but the girl you travel with is easy on the eyes."

"Very—but hard on the purse."

APPLICANT FOR MOVIES

"Young lady have you filled out your form?"

AMONG THE MASONS

"John has the glue," "Hope he won't get the password as well."

CASTS 'EM IN THE SHADE

"She—Your brother casts all other business men in the shade. It's remarkable, I think."

"He—Well, at least all those who use his goods; he's a window blind manufacturer."

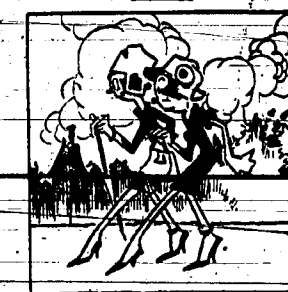

KNOW POOL'S GOLD

"Reggie—I have no trouble, Miss Sharpe, in telling you the gold."

"Miss Sharpe—ah, I'm sure you can tell how much money you have, Mr. Napp."

SHOULD GO EARLIER

"I went to the beauty parlor late this afternoon."

"Why didn't you go before it was closed, dear?"

Both sexes employed. The bureau of biological survey says that both male and female bees work on dams and houses, as far as is known.

Gained 4 Pounds Within 10 Days Praises Konjola

Suffered From Nervousness For Ten Years—Found First And Only Relief In New Medicine

MRS. EZRA CLARK

A record of success that is the marvel of the drug and medical world has been achieved by Konjola, the new medicine, that triumphs when all else fails. Indeed, this super-compound seems to be at the very peak of its powers in the stubborn cases that have baffled every effort to find relief.

"Everything had failed me in a ten year search for health," says Mrs. Ezra Clark, 1650 Bridge street, Grand Rapids. "It seemed that I would never escape the curse of nervousness, stomach, and kidney troubles. Konjola was strongly recommended, but I thought it was just another medicine. But I read and heard so much about it that I concluded that, after all, it might prove to be the medicine I needed. Well, it proved to be that very thing. I gained four pounds in ten days after starting the treatment. Digestion improved and so did my appetite. My kidneys were quickly restored, and in three weeks, my nerves were calmed and I felt like I did years and years ago. I am gaining rapidly in strength, energy and spirits, and I owe this wonderful change to this master medicine. I wish that my voice could reach all who suffer as I did, so that I could urge them to let Konjola make them well again."

Konjola is sold in Grayling at the Mac & Gidley drug store and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.

REPORT CATCHING OF TAGGED TROUT

Trout fishermen who are paving over their equipment during the winter months in anticipation of the season's opening May 1, have been asked to consider a request that the fish hatchery division of the State Conservation Department is making. The hatchery men are asking that next season any fisherman who takes one of the trout tagged by the department report the catch. The information that may be gained from such reports will be considered invaluable by the department's experts who are seeking to gain information on migrations and rate of growth of brook, brown and rainbow trout. The number of the tags, the lengths of the fish and the planting localities have been carefully recorded. Of the older fish, the sex has also been recorded.

The fish division has compiled a list of information which it hopes the fishermen will see fit to forward to the department. It is asking that anglers keep these items at hand where they may be reviewed when supplying the desired facts.

Here are the points stressed: (a) date of capture; (b) length of fish from tip of snout to end of tail; (c) locality of capture; that is, name of stream and location by town or otherwise as accurately as possible; (d) sex of fish, if possible to determine; (e) the tag itself should be mailed together with the report. If so desired, the tag will later be returned to the correspondent.

All correspondence relating to this matter should be addressed to Dr. Jan Metzelaar, University Museum, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

An excellent picture of the elderly couple appeared in Tuesday's issue of the Free Press.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Howse, Archie Howse and John Timm of Maple Valley were in the city Tuesday and had strong praise for the Road commission for keeping the highways open this winter. The roads, it is claimed, are superior to summer roads and that cars can make excellent running time.

This is the first year that autos could be used in the country districts in winter and the privilege is greatly appreciated although there is some expense in keeping the snow plowed out of the highways it is well worth all it costs to the people residing in the rural districts. The plan of keeping the roads open for travel has been a severe test this winter due to the abnormally heavy snow fall and the success with which it has not only indicated its future continuance.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lyall to town Monday afternoon. Car traveling.

Supervisor J. B. Kellogg of Lovells township was in a hurry to get to Grayling Monday so, not being able to travel by train, he started out on foot a distance of 17½ miles. Leaving there at 1 a. m. he arrived in Grayling at 1 p. m. A three-mile per hour is a fair average walking time but Mr. Kellogg averaged more than four miles, which is exceptionally good.

Don't miss the basket ball games held last night when the Grayling High school first and second boys and girls teams will be here for games. The local boys met defeat at Gaylord recently, the only one this season out of eight games played and of course are out for sweet revenge. The girls barely won their game at Gaylord after a hard fight.

GOODFELLOWSHIP CLUB NOTES

Mrs. C. C. Keyport was hostess to the Goodfellowship club Monday afternoon. After the call and business session the following very delightful musical program from American composers was given by Mrs. C. G. Clise:

Venetian Love Song, Mighty Lak a Rose, by Everett.

From the Land of the Sky-Blue Water, The Moon Drops Low, The While Dawn is Stealing, by Cadman.

Love You Truly—Carrie Jacobs Bond.

Morning—Oley Spinks.

CARD OF THANKS

We extend our sincere thanks to our neighbors and friends for their many acts of kindness during the illness and death of our wife and mother.

Roy Holmberg and family.
